OPENING ADDRESS OF HON. GEO. B. LORING,

President of the New England Agricultural Society, at the Annual Exhibition at Bangor, Sept. 1st, 1885.

Farming and Forestry in Maine.

We have assembled here the American position of the New England Agricultural Society, joined with the Eastern Maine Agricultural Association, in accordance with the policy on which the New England Society were brought together in the object of common interest, on one of the annual gathering spots within the limits of the Commonwealth. The time of the year is the time when the long continued energy and industry and sagacity have achieved much for the successfully established credit due to the high purpose and character of man. Never the shores where New England civilization first made the work which has given fame and character to the country found more conspicuous proofs of achievement, perhaps but nowhere could more the fitness of the Season be found, than at this Lady's city, which for so many decades has been the wilderness and the home of the pioneer, the home of the Lady's city

President Loring's Address

To those who were unable to hear the admirable address delivered at the Park yesterday forenoon by Hon. George B. Loring, President of the New England Agricultural Society, we commend a perusal of his timely and interesting remarks, now printed in full by us today. Dr. Loring has enjoyed a very extensive and intimate knowledge of the agricultural interests of New England, and his tribute to the thrift, energy, intelligence and high average condition of comfort and independence that characterize the farming and manufacturing population of Maine, is that of a well qualified judge, and therefore a compliment to be valued by our people.

The special prominence assigned by him to the forest products of Maine is fully warranted by the importance and value of the great lumbering interests of the State, and the suggestions he makes for the preservation and renewal of the timber growth are entitled to earnest consideration.

The address which is most nothing of its force by Dr. Loring's effective and pleasing style of delivery, was received with the warmest expressions of approval by his large audience at the Park, and will be read with pleasure and profit by the larger audience to whom it is addressed in type.

During the first Administration of the post-office in Kearney, Neb., by a Democrat, fifteen regular letters have disappeared and a balance of $200 in cash was covered in the postmaster's accounts.

Philadelphia Times: The Pennsylvania Democracy goes into the campaign determined as it always does to deceive the people as to its first purposes. It will come out, as it always does, without having deceived anybody but itself.

The memory of Jerry McAuley, the ex-convict who founded the celebrated McAuley Mission in New York, is to be kept green by a drinking-fountain over his grave in Woodlawn Cemetery. The fountain will cost $2,000.

Senator Gorman of Maryland took the diplomatic way of expressing his sympathy of the Democrats attending New York this fall, by saying that he did not think a victory in that State was absolutely vital to the success of Cleveland's Administration.

Saturday's daily papers arrived here Monday, and besides those several extras referred to in the third notice of the Sentinel.

This is one of the pleasing effects of the Postmaster General's attempt to maintain the high standard of the service, by turning out clerks and filling their places with Democratic performers.

The census taken in Tennessee shows that there are 300,000 worthless dogs in the State, which consume food enough, if fed to hogs, to make 40,000,000 pounds of bacon, or enough to give meat to an army of 100,000 able-bodied men a whole year. To carry the calculation still further, the bacon at 19 cents per pound, would be worth $8,000,000. This, if paid in silver would load down ninety four two-horse wagons. The keeping of those dogs prevents farmers from keeping sheep, the mutton and wool from which would be worth $6,000,000.

Despatches from Virginia show that the Republicans there are encouraged by the present outlook to hope for success at the polls this fall. They are doing careful work and the speeches of their campaign orators seem to have created effect. Protection to American labor is a doctrine peculiarly well received. The Democrats are hard at the field, and quarrels over Federal spoils are reported to prevent arranging them. They are likely to be driven to repeal upon Danville duties for an effective cry. But with a full vote and no lost votes, all indications now point to the election of Mr. Wise as Governor.

It has just been learned that the nineteen-year-old son of General O. O. Howard, Commander of the Department of the Platte, shot himself through the low part of the breast with suicidal intent. The deed was committed at Fire Hole Basin in the Yellowstone Park last Wednesday. At last accounts it was believed he would not recover. He has been with Lieutenant Kingman in the Park throughout the season. The cause of the act was unrequited attachment for a young lady, said to be Miss Chase, of Omaha, who passed through Livingston, Montana as one of a party bound East. It is said the young man had never met the lady until he saw her in the party. General Howard is now in the Park on a tour of inspection. The wound was believed to have been accidental until young Howard confessed the facts.

The work of rewarding the leading workers in the Count Out conspiracy goes bravely on. Yesterday the Republican postmaster of Oldtown, Mr. Charles W. Bosworth, was removed by the appointment of Melville M. Folsom, who assumed to hold the office of Adjutant General during the revolutionary occupation of the State Capitol and issued the midnight orders to certain companies of the State Militia to assemble at Augusta to uphold the usurpation by force of arms. Simon Brown may well rub his hands with satisfaction and smile with glee as he obtains from the National Administration these public rewards for his confederates in the Maine State Steal. Surely the Mullen pardon to Ohlen is of a piece with the rewarding of the Garcelon Gang of Maine. And how Mr. George William Curtis and his lavender-water associates must enjoy the sweet aroma of delicious reform that ascends from such honoring of the polluters of the ballot.

Our School Houses

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

Vacation to teachers and scholars has not been vacation to all the school houses as will be seen by a visit to some of them. The School Agent has been particularly busy at the houses long neglected, whose condition has cried aloud for the improvements they are now receiving. The Hancock street building, being the first on the list for attention, was served with a massive retaining wall on the lower portion of the lot next the street and grading the grounds, rebuilding and strengthening the cellar walls, making connection with the new sewer on Hancock street, introduction of Holly water, and the basement fitted in a new and somewhat improved style for first-class sanitary purposes, and when the finishing touches of paint and gravel are on, it will be quite another place.

Third street house was the next to come in for a thorough overhauling in the way of a new ceiling, new floor, a careful rebuilding and strengthening of parts of foundation, connection with sewer, putting in Holly water, with ample and convenient sanitary accommodations in the way of water closets and water for general use, so that these two houses, so long in an undesirable condition will, when completed, be equal to any others. It is a move in the right direction, and much needed.

The house and lot on Main street, one of the most beautiful locations we have, which has so long been overrun with loafers, and wood and stone teams, has been substantially enclosed with a suitable fence, the grounds graded and buildings improved.

The westerly wall of the foundation of the Larkin street house has been rebuilt and strengthened with a brick wall, covered with a good coat of cement.

The Division street property has a new and substantial wood shed and the house and shed a coat of paint.

The Center street house also has a coat of paint which is none too soon. The outbuildings at Thomas Hill house have been newly shingled and otherwise repaired. The house at West Bangor is having a new flight of steps, while many of the others are having friendly touches of the brush, and all are to have their regular "house cleaning" before school begins on the 14th of September, at which time it is expected that every house will be in good order, and that the school year will have a prosperous beginning.

NEW ENGLAND FAIR.

Second Day of the Exhibition.

Fine Weather and a Large Attendance.

Able Address by Hon George B. Loring.

The Great Display of Poultry.

The Miscellaneous Exhibits.

The Dairy Department.

Halls Thrown Open to the Public.

A beautiful day was the exception of thousands of persons when they crowded early among the fog overhead to be sure it was hard while the eye could reach a few minutes The crowd kept coming and coming to stay Brown sun and ten thousand fresh winds and the sun shining although the atmosphere was hazy in the St John valley Down in the St John valley 12 and thirteen years old speed in the city people from Mattawamkeag and Patten The Indian band was made up of ten or twelve young men and it brought 700 people with it It came in from the north on the cars and from down river in hundreds of people through the city Marvellously good rides and scores of other attractive things to the Park, and the ever ready conductors were good or other wise as the case might be The crowds show Rouen ducks and the large gentleman also exhibits some Scotch birds Probably the handsome ducks an exhibit from the Mississippi of A I Knelston H V Jones They are indeed beauties and attract a very great deal of attention

The display of geese is not unusually large but they are all magnificent birds A crowd of admirers surrounded their coops during the whole morning I S Buckford, of Dixmont and A J Knelston show large and handsome Toulan geese The latter gentleman also shows wild geese together with C C White coop of Simpson's Corner and I S Bickford exhibits some fine Indians One of the peculiarities of the latter class is that they are not accustomed to keeping still They keep up the most continual scampering in quiet in their movements in the coops Mr H A Jones exhibits some Pekin Fall White Chickens Hence the display in the poultry department

DISCOURAGING EXHIBITS

The lower floor of the grand stand is occupied by a great variety of exhibits One could pass a whole day in viewing them and not see something new There is much to see on the ground floor and one day the time which the average visitor takes to see it is so short that seem the case with the exhibit of Hallingam or be greatly lengthened A score times the door the first exhibit is that of E Mansfield & Son of Otis They show their celebrated steel traps to great degree so well known to all trappers and which have been totally in the fur business for the past 40 years

Among the whole large number exhibited there is probably no handsomer pair than the White Fan Tail doves of Miss Lula Haskell, of Bangor. Any admirer of these varieties will fall in love with this pair immediately Mr. H. A. Jones, of Worcester, makes a large exhibit of Magpies, African Owls and doves of all colors, kinds and sizes His Magpies are blue and white and together with the African Owls are the centre of attraction in this display The latter birds closely resemble doves. Some are of a silvery gray color and others are black and there are many intermediate shades They are curious looking little fellows and beyond a blinking of their eyes rest motionless in their coops Mr. Jones has thirty or more doves in one large coop

Passing into the Turkey department a large and very meritorious display is found Many think that Penobscot County farmers do not pay so much attention to raising turkeys as they ought and this is undoubtedly the case Surely those who visit Maplewood and see this magnificent exhibit will go home with the firm determination to begin breeding the fowls themselves J. H Merrow, of Smithfield, shows bronze, black, buff and Narragansett turkeys, some of which are exceedingly large one being noticed in particular which filled an entire coop A J Knelston, of Simpson's Corner, shows Black and Gray turkeys I P Knelston shows beautiful White and J H Felker, of Hermon Centre shows Bronzes, F. S. Bickford, of Dixmont, shows Black, Bronze, Slate and some handsome Native Birds While the exhibition can be enumerated in a few words it must not be inferred that the exhibit is small for it is really quite large and the birds attract a lot of attention

The ducks and geese occupy one side of the longest room devoted to this department The former are much nicer than those exhibited last year and present a handsome appearance all of them being in fine condition I D Bickford of Dixmont, and I H Felker of Hermon Centre, show Pekin ducks, A J Knelston of Simpson's Corner and H A Jones of Worcester show White Calls, W P Woolworth of Arnold, and J P Jenkins show Rouen ducks and the latter gentleman also exhibits some Scotch birds Probably the handsome ducks an exhibit from the Mississippi of A I Knelston H V Jones They are indeed beauties and attract a very great deal of attention

The display of geese is not unusually large but they are all magnificent birds A crowd of admirers surrounded their coops during the whole morning I S Buckford, of Dixmont and A J Knelston show large and handsome Toulan geese The latter gentleman also shows wild geese together with C C White coop of Simpson's Corner and I S Bickford exhibits some fine Indians One of the peculiarities of the latter class is that they are not accustomed to keeping still They keep up the most continual scampering in quiet in their movements in the coops Mr H A Jones exhibits some Pekin Fall White Chickens Hence the display in the poultry department

The lower floor of the grand stand is occupied by a great variety of exhibits One could pass a whole day in viewing them and not see something new There is much to see on the ground floor and one day the time which the average visitor takes to see it is so short that seem the case with the exhibit of Hallingam or be greatly lengthened A score times the door the first exhibit is that of E Mansfield & Son of Otis They show their celebrated steel traps to great degree so well known to all trappers and which have been totally in the fur business for the past 40 years

G I Hanson, of Belfast, exhibits very handsome sole leather top buggy with gold lining and trimmings One can almost see his face in the side of this buggy so highly varnished Across the building on the centre aisle exhibits we find the machinery department. Here we find a number of carpenters and cabinet makers at work Mr S Bucknam of Exeter shows a fine exhibit of planing machines and saws Mr Bucknam is a large manufacturer of these goods and his exhibit is well worth a visit

C M Young, of Bangor, exhibits a model of a stationary steam engine made entirely of wood and the different parts colored to represent steel or brass as the case may be It is a very nice piece of work and shows that the maker is perfectly familiar with his subject Mr Henry McLaughlin exhibits the Ledgerwood steam engine, the Deane steam pump, H. W. Johns' Asbestos goods, the Canton Mfg Co's goods, the Canton Paint and Oil Company's goods and a full line of railroad contractors' supplies One thing that Mr McLaughlin aims to do is to have every article in his stock a first class one and he fully succeeds The goods displayed by him are standard ones

Passing along a few steps find the carriage department of Bangor Hydraulic Company's exhibit of another Bangor firm which believes in letting the public know that it is alive and active. The firm referred to is Wood, Bishop & Co., a firm which Bangor people are proud of as they are always ready to represent their part of the business of the city in the best manner possible. Their magnificent exhibit is in charge of Mr. Charles H. Wood.

Among the many articles of the thirty articles displayed were taken from their regular stock and were not made expressly for the Fair. They exhibit the Royal Clarion ranges and coal parlors and heaters, the Oakwood range, the New Clarion wood parlors, the Ironbiden and Iron Clad camp cooking stoves, and the New Alliance and Acadia stoves They also show the well known kind and Kohler coal furnaces and the Monitor and Climax wood furnaces This display was probably never excelled by one firm in Maine and it attracts no small amount of attention from the thousands who visit the building

A Noyes & Co, and the Bangor Foundry & Machine Company make a splendid joint display of stoves and ranges made by the latter and sold by the former The Foundry and Machine Company is represented at the Park by Mr J. H Dole while the A Noyes & Co, are represented by Mr Frank C Noyes They show the Kitchen and Queen City ranges, the Helmet and Magnet cook stoves and the Princess, Cottage and Comfort parlor stoves The latter stove occupies a prominent place in the exhibit There are nineteen pieces in the display and all present an excellent appearance These were also taken from the stock of Noyes & Co, with no especial reference to the exhibition

James Dammers of Chelsea, makes a large display of rubber stamps and indelible inks Mr Edward Dammers is in charge of the exhibit and gives a sample of the work done to each person The Kendall Manufacturing Company which makes a specialty of the Kendall Boots occupy 12 by 15 feet space as they did last year Their exhibit is an immense one and attracts many who are passing Mr J L Parker, one of the most genial exhibitors in the building, is in charge, and it is puzzling to know whether strangers are attracted by the manager or the article he is selling Be it full to overflowing with business and loses no opportunity to advertise his goods and in the meantime makes many friends by his accommodating ways and patient answering of all questions Mr. W H Park exhibits a very full line of his rubber and felt stamps, stencils, rubber and metal stamps, stencils, marking plates, self-inking stamps, checks, dates and door plates It is safe to say that Mr Parker's display exceeds that by none of those first at all room

He is present himself looking after his goods and explaining them to customers This completes the exhibits in the lower floor of the grand stand The least that can be said about them is that they could not possibly be improved upon and the details of the displays are very carefully observed than they were last year

Passing into the lower floor of the annex we find every available inch of room there fully occupied by a great and diversified display Over in one corner is a market wagon made at the State Prison which is like many of the work done there, the strongest and best materials being combined This thing is as very exhibit looking and specimen of a horse might stay 1 by George W Russell & Sons, of Worcester, and owned by the city of Bangor W H Wilson & Co the well known Bangor manufacturers, make an unusually large and very fine display of blind and door furniture of the best workmanship and of the latest patterns Their display is very complete. This firm show a variety of carriages, buggies and wagons having in all fifteen or twenty The splendid display has received compliments from all sides and especially from Massachusetts man who have examined it It is very evident that this company has made full justice to its far as an elegant exhibit of carriages is concerned

G I Hanson, of Belfast, exhibits very handsome sole leather top buggy with gold lining and trimmings One can almost see his face in the side of this buggy so highly varnished Across the building on the centre aisle we find the machinery department. Here we find a number of carpenters and cabinet makers at work Mr S Bucknam of Exeter shows a fine exhibit of planing machines and saws Mr Bucknam is a large manufacturer of these goods and his exhibit is well worth a visit

OUR ST. ALBANS LETTER.

The cold wave the past week has reached us here, and slight frosts are reported on low lands, but not much damage to vegetation as yet. A fair crop of grain has been harvested and if September gives us no frosts an average crop of corn and beans will reward the diligent and careful farmer who has given his crops clean culture.

Mrs. Mary Wing, wife of Simon Wing, and eldest daughter of Joseph Merrell, Esq., of St Albans, was brought home from Boston, and buried to-day in the village cemetery. A large attendance at the funeral showed the esteem in which she was held by her friends and acquaintances here. Rev Mr Thayer, of Garland, conducted the funeral services.

The new village school house is almost completed. The two rooms, both on the ground floor, are furnished with the Paragon seats and desks, and are a model of neatness and convenience. Mr. Bigelow, the contractor, has built it in a thorough and workmanlike manner, according to specifications and plans drawn by the committee.

Several of the citizens are making preparations to visit the Eastern Maine and New England Fair, at Bangor, the coming week, and many are taking the advantage of the low fare on the cars to visit the city on business as well as pleasure, and no doubt a large delegation will be present from this and other towns on the line of the road.

E. C. Baker & Son are repairing and remodelling their harness shop, putting in more windows, etc, when completed it will be much more convenient for their business than before.

Mr. Winslow is still running his butter factory to the capacity of four hundred pounds per day of nice butter. He also keeps about fifty hogs and calves which consume the buttermilk, and are thrifty and growing. Mr. Winslow employs four or five men and as many horses collecting cream, having routes into several neighboring towns. The cheese factory, under the superintendence of Mr A S Wilkins, is making five hundred pounds of cheese of excellent quality. Taken both together, quite a large dairy business has been built up here, which pays the farmers better than manufacturing their milk at home.

Mr. A. D. Turner, a teacher of music, is home from Boston on a visit to his father, N B. Turner, Esq.

St Albans, Aug. 30.

Why John Roach Failed

[New York Tribune.]

The Evening Post being brought face to face with the facts in relation to the Roach contracts confesses a little and wriggles a good deal more, but persists in the most glaring of its misstatements. It admits that it was "in error" in saying that the Government stood upon a credited of the firm in the schedule of assets and liabilities. It still tries to raise out, however, that the Government is a creditor, and to this end manipulates the figures and dwells upon its imagination. We do not care to point out any of the new misstatements, but confine ourselves to the main charge, which is, that Senator Sherman did not tell the truth when he said that the Government forced the firm to make an assignment. The following letter written by a prominent merchant of the highest standing, who is also a director in one of the strongest of the city banks, proves that Senator Sherman has not misrepresented the facts.

To the Editor of the Tribune:

Sir, It seems to me that sufficient importance is not given to the fact that the moment Attorney General Garland's dictum in re John Roach was published Mr Roach's credit (as money borrower on his own single name paper—and this was his practice—was ruined, and his paper which had been readily bought by the banks here and elsewhere at a low rate, was not wanted at any price, with a menace of legal proceedings against him by the government for the recovery of over $2,000,000. Hence with credit ruined—most unjustly and wickedly—he was cut off from his regular source of money supply and had no alternative but assignment, so that, as Mr Sherman says, "the assignment of Mr Roach was caused by the action of the Government," and the Evening Post knows it, if it knows how sensitive "original" is to sulks or rumors of sulks.

I state it as a fact that whereas I often recommended Mr. Roach's paper to our bank for purchase at the lowest current rates, I would not, after Attorney General Garland's opinion (which Mr. Whitney had to ignore) was published, recommend it at any rate of discount. Respectfully,

BANK DIRECTOR.

New York, Aug 28, 1885.

Mr Roach's credit was destroyed when the Government declared him liable for every dollar he had received on the contracts. That rendered it impossible for him to borrow the money required for the completion of the contracts. He was literally forced into bankruptcy by an Administration that had systematically persecuted him and hounded him to his ruin. The case lies in a nutshell in this bank director's letter. We give the Evening Post one more chance to confess its error."

James F Meline, chief clerk in the office of United States Treasurer Jordan, had a narrow escape from death by lightning during the severe storm Tuesday afternoon. After leaving the Treasury at 4 o'clock, he was on his way to his home in Maryland when he was caught in the storm and drenched through by the rain. He was completely enveloped with rubber, excepting his hands and face, but it did not protect him from the water. On reaching the top of a high hill a heavy bolt of lightning fell apparently between the horse and the dashboard, and Mr. Meline, who was driving, was stunned. The servant who was sitting behind him says that for a few seconds the blue flame of the electric fluid covered Mr Meline's body, jumping from one shoulder to the other, and playing about his arms and chest on the surface of the rubber coat. He saw also the electricity come up like blue bubbles from under the carriage. It was about two hours after Mr. Meline reached home before he was sufficiently recovered from the shock to be able to stand, and he suffered greatly during the night, his sensation being as if thousands of needles were being stuck into his body. An attempt on the part of his wife to relieve him by bathing his limbs in milk so intensified this sensation that she had to desist and refrain from allowing her hands to come in contact with his body. The horse's hind legs were made stiff. Mr. Meline was at his office Wednesday morning, but he was still suffering from a pricking sensation in his fingers, and had only partial use of his left arm. It is supposed that his life was saved by the wet rubber coat.

The New York Sun is positively cruel on the Boston Post, when it inquires: "Can any of our beloved readers in Boston tell us why the decrepit, bankrupt, and petrified Post is not gently laid away to rest?" The Sun's characterization of the Post as petrified differs somewhat from George Bradburn's, of anti-slavery fame, remark the Concord Monitor, who said it was a "rotten Post, not fit to hitch a jack ass to." Neither of the adjectives are complimentary to the venerable Post, whatever may be thought of [illegible]

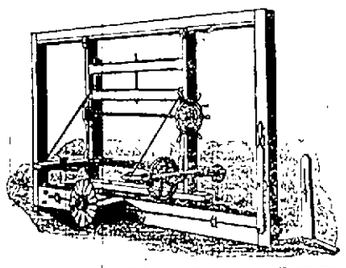
MANUFACTURERS OF THE



Davis Patent Clapboard Machine.

The Davis Patent does away with Turning Works or Supper, as it is provided with three sets of collars and sipping knives on the saw arbor, and saps the bolt at the same time it is sawing. The arbor extends across the Machine, and the saw is outside of the frame, which prevents the sawdust from clogging the gearings; and, in changing saws, you simply take the hub off end of arbor, and remove collars and saw without disturbing arbor.

The saw runs 2200 revolutions per minute, and the Machine will cut from 5 to 6 M. per day; an average of 500 per day over the old style machine.
